

CABINET MEMBERS

WE CAST OUR VOTE FOR THE REAL PARTY LEADERS OF 2020: HOME BARS

Words: Anna Prendergast

Rockstar bar, £5,000, bustlerandpunch.com

Dey January is over, and it's time to find a proper home for that Château Lafite 1990 that you generously gifted yourself this Christmas. As we enter the Twenties 2.0, a century after Prohibition drove drinkers indoors and caused clandestine bars to crop up all over the United States, home bars are an increasingly stylish storage solution for the sort of bottles that don't deserve to be hidden away. For the ultimate power move, install one in your private office, such as Buster & Punch's Rockstar console. The company's commitment to craftsmanship in everything from motorcycles to lighting fixtures is echoed in the console's construction – in American walnut and quilted silk, it's a sexy bit of kit for decanting whiskey and wine. Designers are also getting ahead of the curve with circular bars, from Green Apple's jet-black Sahara Noir marble orb to PIB's spherical centrepiece. Whether you opt for lacquered wood or burnished brass, the most important part is the contents: make sure it's well stocked with ice, garnishes, accessories and, of course, that 1990 Lafite. »

1. Stainless steel corkscrew, £40, georgjensen.com
2. 1950s Mauro Manetti pineapple ice bucket, £1,065, fiftys.co.uk
3. Sterling silver cocktail shaker, £9,250, aspney.com
4. Bar globe with brushed metallic finish, £1,700, pib-home.co.uk
5. Sahara Noir marble bar, POA, greenapple.pt
6. Sycamore bar cabinet by Michael Ryan Architects, £5,618, fiftys.co.uk
7. Kara drinks trolley, £375, grahamandgreen.co.uk
8. S26 Bluermoon bar cabinet, £10,420, fiftys.co.uk
9. Mirrored bar cabinet, POA, northern.no